

How Insurance can Protect Your Work-in-Progress

Camper vans or motorhomes are often a common choice for anyone wanting to give something a new lease of life. The restoration of a vehicle can take a considerable amount of time, but it will normally be an incredibly rewarding experience. And returning a motorhome to its former glory can also be a great investment. Once it is completed, you will always have it for your holidays and you may even choose to hire it out!

But in the interim period, it is vital to keep it safe. The law states that if a vehicle is left parked on a public road, then it will need to have insurance. However, even if you are fortunate enough to have your own driveway, then it will still be prudent to keep your motorhome insured. After all, this ongoing project will be your pride and joy, so you will want to keep it as safe as possible.

There are the 3 very good reasons for having insurance in place...

1. Theft – Don't let Your Motorhome be Driven Away!

Even before your motorhome is anywhere near completion, there is the chance of it being stolen. You may still have plenty of work to do, but if it is drivable, then it can be driven away by thieves! This is one of the biggest reasons for having your vehicle insured.

It is also a very good idea to take a few basic security measures... Fitting an anti-theft device is a simple and inexpensive matter. Or how about removing a small but vital component from the ignition system?

2. Vandalism – Protecting all of That Hard Work!

It is a sad fact of life that some people out there just love to destroy the property of others. And if that property happens to be something that you have spent months renovating, then it will be very upsetting indeed! A good, fully comprehensive insurance policy will mean that your vehicle is covered against any acts of vandalism.

Keeping your motorhome parked in a well-lit area will also act as a deterrent and it may even be worth installing a few more exterior lights.

3. Break-ins – Keeping the Thieves OUT!

Even specialised furniture or fittings are of value and can be a popular target for thieves. You may well have spent a small fortune getting the interior of your vehicle just how you want it so it is important to keep it safe. By purchasing your cover from a company who specialise in comprehensive motorhome insurance cover, you will normally receive an additional amount of protection for the inside of your vehicle.

It is also wise to have an alarm system fitted. These are far less expensive than they once were and can prove to be a very worthwhile investment!
